

More Than Pumpkins

Need an antidote to fall fever?
Take a family day and gulp in the fresh air at one of these pumpkin-filled attractions.

—Lori Williams

Halloween Orr Bust

The Orr Family Farm in Moore gives kids of all ages fall fun in droves. Traditionalists can visit the pumpkin patch while adventurers race pedal cars on the Orr Grand Prix. Visitors can also "milk" a fiberglass cow, hang with farm animals, or take a spin on the horse carousel. September 23-October 31. $6.50-$8.50. (405) 799-3276; orrfamilyfarm.com.

Pump up the Pumpkin

When nothing but a vine-ripe Oklahoma pumpkin will do, visit the secluded eleven-acre pumpkin patch at McLemore Pumpkin Farm in Colony. The fun includes a hayride, fifteen pumpkin varieties, a hay maze, and baby animals. September 15-October 31. $4. (405) 929-7328; mclmorepumpkinfarm.com.

"You must be Daddy's little pumpkin. I can tell by the way you roll."
— John Priné, "Daddy's Little Pumpkin"

Park Haunts

At Lake Eufaula State Park in Checotah, nature trails are canopied with beautiful hardwood foliage by day and filled with spooks by night. A tram ride and haunted hay bale mazes are open Fridays and Saturdays after dark in October. $3-$7. (918) 689-4607; oklahomaparks.com.

An A-Maze-ing Time

Twice the fun brings twice the memories at PBar Farms in Weatherford. During the fall season, half the corn MAiZE is haunted. Want to pick more than a pumpkin? Harvest a 'Black Diamond' watermelon. Six dollars gets you access to the corn mazes and a train or hayride. September 3-October 31. (580) 772-4401; pbarfarms.com.

It's All in the Family

Want an interesting family photo-op? Look no further than the pumpkin mountains at Carmichael's in Bixby, where Don and Joyce Carmichael have sown the seeds of family tradition for twenty-nine years. Kids will enjoy a wagon ride, petting zoo, hay maze, and those pumpkin mountains. October 1-31. Free-$2.50. (918) 366-4772.

Chunky Dunk

On October 22 at Chester's Party Barn and Farm in Piedmont, competitors pay five bucks to sling a pumpkin during the Pun'kin Chunkin' Contest. Regular admission includes a pony ride, petting zoo, hayride, and mystery maze on a Chisholm Trail cattle stampede site. October 1-31. $6. (405) 373-1595; chesterspartybarn.com.